JURY DISAGREES IN TRIAL OF JOS. SILVA

The jury which tried the case of the people against Joseph F. Silva of Niles charged in the Superior Court of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder disagreed over a verdict last night and was discharged by Judge Brown.

In view of the showing made by the defense at the trial it seems to be a question if the case will be pressed further.

PURITY May 28.—The students of the high school are to day electing for the term of one year. The students in their election have used all sorts of old time campaign ideas, have been invoked. The faculty and the school board have frowned upon them and a mass meeting called yesterday afternoon in the interests of certain candidates can be called by one of the principal James.

William Henderson in George Ince's room is running as a political candidate. He is running as a good governmentist and Ince appeals to the students to support Ince and thus win the nomination.

Many of the nominees have come to the expense of getting out their and invited master setting forth their merits in the most eloquentistic style.

False Whisperings Must Stop.

It is time to protest in the most emphatic manner against the dastardly business of whispering unwarranted reports discrediting the integrity and financial status of well-established and perfectly solvent business firms doing business in Oakland and San Francisco. These reports take the form of whisperings that the concerns named are in the hands of receivers and are, therefore, in financial trouble. The source of these vicious and false reports is not traceable, hence the impossibility to fix the responsibility and hold the author accountable. But these untruthful stories are spread abroad to the injury of the merchants concerned and give a bad name to the city. And yet, as a matter of fact, the firms assailed in these vicious whisperings in Oakland are not, nor have they been, in financial distress in any sense whatever. In all probability these vicious whisperings have been started by irresponsible persons of inventive imaginations for sensational effect. Envious rivals in trade have started these rumors; it is all the more to their discredit and will ultimately react to their disadvantage, as it very properly should. So far as the merchants of Oakland who have become involved in these false rumors are concerned THE TRIBUNE can positively assert that there is not the slightest foundation for them, and they should, therefore, be stopped at once. As a matter of fact the larger retail houses in Oakland were never on a sounder financial footing or doing a larger and more profitable business. They have never been in a more prosperous condition than they are today. Whoever gives hearing to these malicious reports or countenances their circulation is not only doing a grave injustice to the merchants, but he is a dangerous enemy to the welfare of the community. This is no time to be tearing down, but it behooves every citizen to devote his energies to upbuilding.

Mr. Knowland and The Call.

In denouncing Congressman Knowland for saying California is pretty well satisfied with the tariff as it stands, the Call assumes that President Taft will veto the tariff bill now being worked into form by Congress. But if the President should sign the bill, what will become of the Call, poor thing? It will promptly turn round and say the bill was changed to meet objections offered by itself. Its recent swift change of front on the direct primary bill while the Legislature was in session illustrates its chameleon habit of changing color on short notice. However, the Call's antipathy to Mr. Knowland does not spring from difference of opinion regarding tariff legislation. The Call cares no more about the tariff than it does about a multitude of other things, such as trades unionism, child labor and ballot reform, which it exploits in the hope of gaining circulation or as prettexts for assailing public men who refuse to acknowledge Rudolph Spreckels as their political suzerain. Without even pretending to interpret the tariff plank of the Republican platform, the Call fiercely denounces the Congressman from the Third District for alleged violation of party pledges. Apparently the editor of the Spreckels organ has been reading the Denver platform, and believes in its declaration that the tariff should be shot all to pieces. There is no warrant in the Chicago platform for the assumption that the Republican party pledged itself to a horizontal reduction of the tariff all along the line. The Chicago platform, while pledging the party to a revision of tariff duties to the extent of eliminating inequalities and imposition on the consumers, renewed all previous pledges of Republican loyalty to the policy of protecting American labor and the products of American labor from free competition with the products of the pauper labor of Europe and the Orient. If the Call's free trade ratiocinations were accepted as expressive of public policy there would be a prompt removal of the protective duties on raisins, nuts, wines, citrus fruits, lumber, hides, mineral oils, etc. If Mr. Knowland were to vote for a tariff schedule so destructive to the interests of California, the Call, which now denounces him for standing by home industry and the protective policy, would fiercely denounce him as a public enemy and a traitor to his constituency.

Private Detectives and Public Authority.

In the matter of the action brought in the name of a taxpayer to restrain the Auditor and Treasurer of San Francisco from paying the salaries of the band of private detectives that Rudolph Spreckels transferred from his own payroll to the payroll of the city, Judge Sturtevant has rendered a decision that settles one or two important questions. He rules that the District Attorney had authority under the general law of the State to employ the men, but that they are in no sense public officers and have no authority as such. Moreover, he decides that their pay should come out of the fee fund after a detailed statement under oath has been made of the nature and extent of the service performed. He also decides that the court has no power to issue an injunction to prevent the payment of the salaries, stating that if money be paid out without authority of law it is recoverable in an action at law—in other words, the Auditor and Treasurer are responsible on their official bonds for any money they may pay out illegally.

In effect, Judge Sturtevant's decision declares that the Supervisors had no authority to provide the District Attorney with a special fund to be expended in such amounts and in such manner as he sees fit; hence the ordinance granting him the special appropriation and the authority to expend it at his discretion is void. It would appear from this that the money already paid out on his order from the special fund was not regularly audited or paid from the proper fund. Whether this makes the Auditor and Treasurer liable for the money thus expended is left to conjecture. If the vouchers conform to the requirements of the law, doubtless the special fund can be covered back into the treasury and transferred to the fee fund, which would enable the salaries to be paid from the proper fund in conformity with law.

Perhaps the most important part of the decision is the declaration that the so-called special agents employed under the direction of William J. Burns have no status as civil officers. They are merely employees for the time being, of the city and county. An attempt was made to give these men the status of civil officers while they were still in the private employ of Rudolph Spreckels, and detectives employed by the United Railroads were arrested on the theory that the Burns men were given such status by taking an oath to fulfill an official duty which is not prescribed, defined or recognized by the law. As Judge Sturtevant says, these men have no official duties which they could be compelled by mandamus to perform.

The point of this is the bearing it has on the statute making it a penal offense to interfere with a public officer in the discharge of his duty. The private detectives employed by Spreckels attempted to usurp the prerogatives and authority of officers of the law within the meaning of this statute. They were made attaches of the District Attorney's office, so far as Langdon could make them, while they were under the pay and direction of Rudolph Spreckels, having no legal authority. They were trailing and shadowing other people, particularly the officers, attorneys and employes of the United Railroads, but construed it as a criminal offense when others did precisely the same thing with regard to themselves. This theory was carried to such an extreme that detectives employed by the United Railroads were held to be criminally liable in San Francisco for investigating the doings of Spreckels' men in other counties in relation to matters foreign to the jurisdiction of the courts and District Attorney of San Francisco. For instance, it was assumed to be a criminal offense, punishable in San Francisco, for the private detectives of Patrick Calhoun to investigate the Gallagher explosion in Alameda county while the detectives of Rudolph Spreckels were conducting an investigation into that matter. Thus jurisdiction was extended to another county to cover the operations of men who had no legal status as officers in Alameda county or the city and county of San Francisco.

The decision of Judge Sturtevant apparently places on an equal footing the private detectives employed on both sides of the case. Burns hired employes of the United Railroads to disclose to him the secrets and operations of the defense, but has set up the claim that it was criminal interference with officers in discharge of their duty for the other side to do the same thing. As the official status of his men has been knocked out by the Sturtevant decision, albeit it was rendered in a civil action, his contention falls to the ground. However, this leaves untouched the assumption that it is honorable for public officials to do what it is dishonorable for a citizen who has his liberty and reputation at stake to do. Public opinion will have to decide if what is conspiracy in one case is not conspiracy in the other.

The Governor of Texas entertains unique ideas of economy. He has vetoed an appropriation of $1,086,000 voted by the legislature to redeem an expense bond issue. He says he has done this as a saving to the taxpayers. The bonds are held by the State school fund, which will lose the interest for a year as a result of the Governor's peculiar method of economizing. Of course the bonds will have to be paid, and the interest lost by the school fund will have to be made up by taxation. The only effect of the Governor's veto will be to postpone the payment of a public debt which the State is in splendid condition to pay because a low rate of taxation affords abundant revenue for all purposes. But the comments of the Texas papers on the Governor's proceeding indicate that they have a liking for humbug and sham economy.

Senator Bailey has justifiable ground for complaining that a section of the press has treated him unfairly, but he is very foolish if he thinks he can prevent adverse criticism, whether fair or unfair, by denominating newspapers from the floor of the Senate or swatting reporters in the lobby. From being an object of censure he descends to be a target for ridicule, and no public man can survive being made the laughing stock of the country. Nor can a man aspire to permanent political leadership who is so choleric of temper and so intemperate of speech as the Texas Senator.

NEWSBOY TRIED TO SAVE MAN FROM SUICIDE

SEATTLE, Wash., May 28.—A man giving his name as R. Haugnacher, who said he had a wife living in Portland, Ore., committed suicide last night by drinking carbolic acid. The man drank the poison while in an alley. James Bergstrand, a 12 year old newsboy, saw the man take the drug and tried to stop him, but was unsuccessful. The boy's hands were badly burned by the acid spilled from the glass. The reason given for the man's action, in a note found in Haugnacher's pocket, was domestic trouble. The note also contained a request that the body be given to the physicians for dissection in order to save his wife from paying for the expense of holding a funeral.

THE CARE OF THE TEA KETTLE

Some people think that because the tea-kettle never contains anything but clean water it need seldom be washed.

Every housewife who lives where water is hard, however, knows how the lime and other salts form a coating on the inside. This may be largely prevented, and the outside of the tea-kettle kept free from "soot" and greasy, by washing, inside and outside, each morning, with hot water and Gold Dust.

The hard lime and other salts are dissolved by the Gold Dust and the inside of kettle will be kept smooth much longer, if thus cayed for. Be sure to rinse thoroughly with hot or warm water to remove all soapy water, then re-fill with cold water for heating.

MISSING RAILROAD MAN HAS BEEN HEARD FROM

NEW YORK, May 28.—A letter bearing the postmark of Seattle has been received by Mrs. Diana S. Curtis from her husband, who disappeared from the Wayne Hotel in Detroit on April 21, while bound for Mackinac, Mich. The letter is so incomprehensible as to lead his wife who lives in Chantilly, N. J., to fear that his mind has failed him. Curtis is a railroad engineer and after designing the bridge across the Hudson River at New York, he went to live in Chantilly, Va. It was on this business that he went to Michigan, where he disappeared. The letter gives no address and the Seattle police have been asked to look for him.

BLACKMAILER IS AN INSANE MAN

Mysterious Letters to a Millionaire Are Traced to a Demented Miner

LOS ANGELES, May 28.—Charged with sending letters in which he threatened and demanded $100,000 from A. Douglas, a millionaire mining man of Douglas, Arizona, who is residing temporarily in Pasadena, Sam León, alias Little León, was arrested yesterday at the ranch of B. Baillieu, near Redondo.

Dr. George Campbell examined León when brought here last night and later a complaint of insanity was issued.

About six months ago León sustained severe injuries by falling in a shaft of the Copper Queen Mining company at Idarop. He was taken to a hospital and later sent to live with his mother, who, unable to swim, was drowning, their rowboat having overturned.

Captain Gobel was supporting one of the men who was unconscious when a man came to his assistance with a rowboat and rescued the helpless man aboard. The two men then went after the other man, who were still struggling and after considerable difficulty rescued them.

Captain Gobel was supporting one of the men who was unconscious when a man came to his assistance with a rowboat and rescued the helpless man aboard. The two men then went after the other man, who were still struggling and after considerable difficulty rescued them.

YOUTH MAKES SERIOUS CHARGES

Says Race Track Man Abducted Him and Kept Him in Close Custody

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, May 28.—John Chilcott, 5 years of age, told the police yesterday morning of a remarkable story of illegal abduction from his home at 1504 North 15th street, Los Angeles. The lad makes charges serious in nature, against Parter Faunt, a horse owner who is in this city for the race meeting.

The youngster has suffered intense agony from an ulcerated tooth for the last three weeks and though he made known his condition at that time, was not until yesterday, he says, when the pain grew so intense, threatening that Faunt would consent to his leaving. Finally according to the boy's story, Faunt took him to police headquarters and requested the surgeon to attend to him.

According to the lad, yesterday was the first time that he has been allowed out of Faunt's sight in three months, when, against the wishes of his mother, he escaped from the man forced him to leave his home for Atlanta.

"He has never let me go clothes hanger," said he, "and never once have I had a chance to escape."

"He has been keeping me working at gathering the horses. And the week is mighty hard for us, too. He told me that I was under a six month contract to work for him."

The boy's story is being investigated by the police.

TESTIMONIAL BENEFIT GIVEN FRED A. COOPER

A testimonial benefit was given the veteran manager actor and theatrical manager, Fred A. Cooper, at the Macdonough Theater yesterday afternoon by an aggregation of talent from all the Oakland theaters. Yu Liberty Playhouse contributed an act from "The Road to Yesterdays," and the Broadway Theatre sketch, "Exploring in Winter." There were several selections by the Bellas quartet and by the boy violinist, Paul Simney. Other numbers were given by Lew Steffens of the Gem Theater, black face comedy; Gabe Graham, comedienne, and Stanley, the ice roller skater, from the Linn Theatre. Miss Felta Emerson, Belle Barrett, baritone from the Central Theatre, the orchestra, McFetridge, whirling dervishes from the Bell, and one act from the Gauley Theater, together with a few words from W. J. Ellerford, James M. Ward and L. R. Stockwell.

The stage was under the direction of Milton Stoddard. Nat C. Goodwin and Manager Clinton P. Hall donated the theater for the occasion.

STEAMER RUNS AGROUND FOR THE SECOND TIME

NEW YORK, May 28.—The steamer Princess Alice, en route bound for Plymouth, again went aground while passing through Ambridge channel off Sandy Hook today, but was floated soon after. The steamer had just been floated after getting around off Staten Island all night.

NEW YORK, May 28.—Efforts to save the Home Telephone Company, of Omaha, from liquidation through the tedious processes of a receivership, are progressing, but just when or just how it will be done, has yet to be determined. This is the message which President S. G. Reed of the German-American Bank, brings from Omaha. He has been there for several weeks trying to ascertain what chances were for the company to pay up the $35,000 default interest on the company's bonds, due to Portland holders of these securities. He returned from the East this morning, but merely reports that a group of local Omaha capitalists are trying to work out some form of reorganization which shall protect the creditors.

With obligations exceeding $10,000,000 at present, and with the necessity of raising an additional $1,000,000 to wipe out current indebtedness and for needed extension to put the property on a dividend-paying basis, the immediate outlook for Spring coupon-clipping does not appear to be very rosie, but all this depends on what the reorganizers decide to do.

OMAHA COMPANY NEEDS MILLION

Interest Due on Home Phone Bonds Is Still Long Ways Off

OMAHA, May 28.—Efforts to save the Home Telephone Company, of Omaha, from liquidation through the tedious processes of a receivership, are progressing, but just when or just how it will be done, has yet to be determined. This is the message which President S. G. Reed of the German-American Bank, brings from Omaha. He has been there for several weeks trying to ascertain what chances were for the company to pay up the $35,000 default interest on the company's bonds, due to Portland holders of these securities. He returned from the East this morning, but merely reports that a group of local Omaha capitalists are trying to work out some form of reorganization which shall protect the creditors.

With obligations exceeding $10,000,000 at present, and with the necessity of raising an additional $1,000,000 to wipe out current indebtedness and for needed extension to put the property on a dividend-paying basis, the immediate outlook for Spring coupon-clipping does not appear to be very rosie, but all this depends on what the reorganizers decide to do.

Those Concerned

Portland people, depositors in the defunct Oregon Trust & Savings Bank, who accepted Omaha telephone securities in lieu of cash, are concerned in the affairs of the corporation to the extent of about $600,000, out of a total bonded indebtedness outstanding of $1,636,000. In round numbers, Omaha people held $500,000 of these bonds, while Los Angeles and San Diego investors held about the same amount.

The usage rate of default interest which should have been paid in April is theoretically about $175,000, but the rates of interest in Omaha are so low that this number can be increased to $30,000, which will permit the charging of a maximum rate according to the franchise, it will take considerable time, Mr. Reed thinks, before the company will be in shape to liquidate the interest account.

The principal problem the reorganizers have before them, commented Mr. Reed today, is to spin out a plan of future obligations, and to extend the service to 10,000 subscribers. The company has a good property, there doesn't seem to be any question about that, but with 5,200 phones in operation in competing territory, the net earnings just about balance operating expenses, leaving little or nothing for fixed charges. The rates in Omaha are so little, however, that the lower the extension of the territory covered, the higher the rate that may be charged. The service has been extended to South Omaha, which is covered by long-distance service.

Present Liabilities

Present liabilities of the company consist of about $1,636,000 bonds, drawing 4 per cent, and $1,000,000 preferred stock, drawing 4 per cent, and about $600,000 of common stock, the sum in talk, another $1,000,000 for options, and, bringing the total liabilities up to about $4,000,000. The bond and stockholders number somewhere between 3000 and 3500, and are scattered all over the country.

No definite scheme for future financing the property has as yet worked out yet, the reorganizers would like to take hold of the property and direct the reorganization, but, as far as they know, the Interests which we are advised to consider to represent are adverse interests, and I could not see my way clear to go in with them and make any suggestions to the Portland bondholders as to what they should or should not accept. I told them it was up to them to make some proposal.

Mr. Reed was asked if he thought the reorganization would be successful.

"I think so," he said, "but they would send a man out here to Portland to explain whatever plan of handling the affairs of the company was finally adopted. I expect the reorganization of the reorganization forces will visit Portland in a short time, as there was every disposition on the part of the new crowd to hurry the project along."

RAID BY BURNS' SLEUTHS ON PRIVATE OFFICES OF RAILROAD IS DESCRIBED BY WITNESSES

Admit on the Calhoun Trial That Vigorous Protest Was Made; Describe in Detail Breaking in of Door and Drilling of Safe

SAN FRANCISCO, May 28.—The Burns agents' raid on the offices of the United Railroads, in the course of which a band of gum shoe men admittedly examined every paper, private or otherwise, in the possession of the company, was fully laid in every phase today in the Calhoun proceeding.

Detective Servant George McMenamin, formerly of the district attorney's office, who conducted the gang of raiders, was the principal witness of the morning. He rehearsed every detail of the episode, from the breaking in of the door and the smashing of the glass panels to the drilling of the safes and the careful use of every document.

Judge Lawler seemed to be slightly disturbed by the turn of the examination, although he overruled the objection of the defense to the admission of the testimony, and appeared to be easily swayed by the arguments of Heney as to the relevancy of the testimony.

TODAY'S SESSION

That "Bill" Ott, ex-prize fighter, and Heney's bodyguard, is a man of at least one all, and particularly under the name of Helms away in Trinity county less than a month ago, was part of the evidence given by Alonso J. Monroe, the prominent Eureka lawyer, testifying in the Calhoun trial this morning. The prosecutor's "entourage," as Attorney Earl Rogers referred to him, had accompanied Detective Goff in bringing down Mr. Helms from Trinity county and had subpoenaed Monroe as witness in the present case.

"I asked him whether or not he was a Mason," declared the witness, "and I wanted to know why he was subpoenaed here. I told him then it was an outrage to bring me down here. I knew nothing about Mr. Calhoun's case."

Forest Ranger

Attorney Earl Rogers, who was conducting the cross-examination, first secured an answer from the witness of the duties of the forest ranger who takes the place of a constable in the wild interior of the state against Indians and savages, had called his attention to the fact that it was the Sabbath day, and had ordered him to leave and that Calhoun himself had remarked that he stood on his rights as an American citizen in so far as he had been interfered with in the wilds.

"He had been told by the defendant that he planned to change the motive power immediately after the fire from cable to overhead trolley. He had seen Calhoun the day he arrived at the Turk street car barn, and was under the impression that he had been informed that it would take less time to put in the trolley than to rehabilitate the cabin.

Heney attempted to offer in evidence the defense's objection referred to, but the defense's objection was sustained. Judge Lawler, Helms, whose vacation trip had been interrupted by the subpoena, was then permanently excused. The prosecutor wanted to offer the Zuck telegram, but had not laid a sufficient foundation, and William H. Fields, superintendent of the Thirkerton Detective agency, was summoned.

He then produced a transcript of his statement made to Muley on the second day of the search which he believed had been taken in that city. Attorney Goff, to whom he had pointed out that the raid was a "conspiracy made by William J. Burns during the trial now in progress for the purpose of poisoning the public mind and manufacturing public sentiment."

It characterized the condition of the United Railroads offices, as being "infested by the mercenaries of Burns."

Lawlor's Strange Ruling

When Moore had concluded, Stanley Moore desired to proceed, but was prevented by the court.

"I think only one member of counsel should examine," declared his honor.

Moore pointed out that in the majority of cases Heney and O'Gara had re-examined witnesses. Judge Lawler disagreed with him and rebuked him saying:

"Counsel should not make any such statement as that."

The defendant's attorney offered to prove it, and later the court permitted to go ahead.

"Do you know whether Mr. Ott and Tony Irwin, an ex-prize fighter, and a wife, and a man of unknown identity had gathered around the hallway that Saturday night?"

"There were not a lot of men there. I could give you the names of all of them,"

Counsel desired to show that before the men had arrived at the office the hallways had been thronged, that there were a crowd of Burns sympathizers on the sixth floor, the eighth floor, and down on the street, but the witness claimed not to have known it if such was the case.

Objections by Defense

Heney interrogated him as to whether Lamb had not been in trouble in connection with the murder of a man named Erickson, and asked him variously if he hadn't been tried for murder, bribery, subversion of justice and other offenses. To these queries, Attorney Joseph and Rogers, representing the defense, interposed vigorous objections, maintaining that it was an outrage to the jury to examine a witness to this end.

On cross-examination Rogers discovered that the actual Burns men in the raid on Brown's office were the two McCarrhans, Ott and Raymond Burns. Murphy had taken away three typewritten sheets of paper.

"What did you do with them?" was asked.

"I took them to the district attorney's office in the Call building."

To Burns' Office

"In the Call building?"

"Yes, sir."

"Is that the district attorney's office?"

"Yes, sir."

"Don't you know that is Burns' office?"

"I thought it was the branch office of the district attorney."

"Don't you know that the district attorney's office is in the Grant building?"

"Yes, sir."

"Who was there when you went to Burns' office?"

"There was William J. Burns, Captain Anderson, Assistant District Attorney Harrison, Rudolph Sprockets, and I think Mr. Cobb."

"Was Fremont older then?"

"I don't know."

Counsel thereupon inquired of the witness regarding his remonstrance that the Burns men should be admitted. Murphy preferred to characterize them as representatives of the district attorney's office, but Rogers asked:

"Weren't they always referred to as Burns' men at that time?"

"I don't know."

Counsel Grows Angry

"I take an exception to that remark that he is an adverse witness," protested Rogers. "Judge Moore's reputation is well known for him to be referred to in that way."

"Well, he is a prosecutor. He told me he would not tell anything when I met him outside the court room."

"You can't prove that," retorted Rogers, "even by the facile swearers that you had with you."

"They can't swear in any more facile way than you or your partner, Luther Brown," returned the prosecutor.

"I take an exception to that," replied the defendant's attorney.

Continuing, counsel brought out that he was here restored, and Monroe the place had swarmed with gum shoes and spies and that it was with difficulty that most of them were restrained from entering. The witness stated that he had never taken the papers seized to the property owner's office, and had never made a sworn return on them to the police court.

Murphy next identified a number of photographs of the safes and wrecked offices of the United Railroads which were tendered in evidence by Rogers, and shown to the jury.

Schindler's report on James L. Arthur was introduced, and the witness was not sure, but believed that this was the one the Burns men had called attention to.

Defective Ottis, Heney's bodyguard, here tried to whisper something in the prosecutor's ear, but the latter had been annoyed by the attitude of Monroe and refused to listen. He persisted and Heney put back his hand as though to strike him. The bodyguard fled his red, rotted to his seat, and wrote his message.

On cross-examination it was brought out that the witness had been ten years city attorney of Eureka, and one term district attorney of Humboldt county.

Angered at Bodyguard

Detective Ottis, Heney's bodyguard, here tried to whisper something in the prosecutor's ear, but the latter had been annoyed by the attitude of Monroe and refused to listen. He persisted and Heney put back his hand as though to strike him. The bodyguard fled his red, rotted to his seat, and wrote his message.

On cross-examination it was brought out that the witness had been ten years city attorney of Eureka, and one term district attorney of Humboldt county.

Counsel requested Monroe to detail his conversation with Ottis, but the latter had stopped the work just after consulting with the Burns men, and Assistant District Attorney Hanley had gone ahead with his examination.

You looked at every paper in Mr. Calhoun's office didn't you?"

"I didn't, but Schindler and Russell did."

"Don't you remember Mr. Rogers telling you that this was merely an attempt made by Burns to look at every paper in Calhoun's office, and to find out his private business?"

Heney taking the witness in charge, once more developed the fact that after Rogers had first examined the search warrant he had stunned the door and refused them admittance, and there were a number of earnest on the inside.

He had been told by the defendant that he planned to change the motive power immediately after the fire from cable to overhead trolley. He had seen Calhoun the day he arrived at the Turk street car barn, and was under the impression that he had been informed that it would take less time to put in the trolley than to rehabilitate the cabin.

Heney attempted to offer in evidence the defense's objection referred to, but the defense's objection was sustained.

Attorney Rogers announced that he could not finish with the witness tonight, and an adjournment was taken at 8:30 a.m. Friday.

Tells of Arrests

Over the strenuous objections of the defense the witness next told of having arrested Jerry Van Wormer and Al McKinley on the same day as the raid.

Attorney Rogers announced that he could not finish with the witness tonight, and an adjournment was taken at 8:30 a.m. Friday.

Admits Protests

Attorney A. A. Moore here took a hand at the questioning, and secured a statement from Muley to the effect that he had told him the day of the raid that the defendant was protected by the constitution of the United States, and that the state against whom he had called his attention to the fact that it was the Sabbath day, and had ordered him to leave and that Calhoun himself had remarked that he stood on his rights as an American citizen in so far as he had been interfered with in the wilds.
